Dear Leonard Everett:

Dr. Martin approves of both the design for the title page and the design for the endpapers.

He had only one reservation, and this was in the title page drawing. He thinks the boy looks a little too somber, as if perhaps he had been burning the midnight oil too much, and thought perhaps he ought to look a little more cheerful and outgoing. He thought that if the shadows on the (boy's) left side (our right side) were lightened somewhat this might help. I pass this along to you for whatever it might be worth to you.

Query: what about considering knocking out the moon and a few of the stars in white?

Best regards,

P.S. How are things down at the Works? I noticed a small item in the Times this morning to the effect that the Westport town council has just passed an ordinance against smelly industries within the town limits. No names were mentioned, but I think I know.
